Navigating Your Financial Future (NyFF)

Audio Presentations

We are in the home stretch toward the end of this academic year! Spring break is over, proms are in full swing, and Senior Class trips are ahead for the graduating class of 2011. During these rights of passage, it is our job to help the students stay focused on important goals - that is finishing strong in high school and preparing for their future endeavors.

For students moving on to higher education, the Navigating Your Financial Future

(NyFF) website has several audio presentations to remind students of important information and deadlines. Choose from:

- The Overview of Financial Aid
- Managing Your Credit
- Managing Your Budget
- School and Life Management

Great resources are just a click away.

Florida Department of Education (FLDOE) Social Media Presence!

The FLDOE, Office of Communications and External Affairs, is proud to announce the launch of the official social media presence! Our new out-reach methods include:

A Department of Education Facebook page

A Department of Education Twitter account

A Department of Education blog

FLDOE has launched these new outreach resources to improve the frequency and quality of our communication with Floridians throughout the state. We have already accumulated over 525 followers on Facebook, more than 200 followers on Twitter, and have logged more than 2,000 views across our blogs.

FLDOE is confident these new outreach techniques will provide worthwhile resources for Florida students, parents, educators, guidance counselors, and mentors.

Preparing for College Checklist

The Navigating Your Financial Future website is linked to valuable resources such as the Preparing for College Checklist, available for your middle school and high school students. This is a checklist to insert with student's progress reports and final report cards! To learn more click here.

Gas is expensive - campus tours don't have to be.

Virtual tours allows your students to visit various college campuses without leaving their seats!
